Koch's Discovery.

It is Not to Be Given to the World.

HIS LYMPH OFFERED FOR SALE.

A Lengthy Article on the Cure of Consumption by Professor Koch Published in a German Medical Paper—Invalids Flocking to Berlin.

BERLIN, Nov. 15.—The article by Professor Koch, in this week's number of The Deutsche Medizinische-Wochenschrift (German Medical Weekly), is entitled: "Further Communications on the Cure of Tuberculosis and Experiments Which Dr. Libbertz and Staff Surgeon Pruehl Performed. Relating Thereto, Under Professor Koch's Direction."

In this article Professor Koch says that he is, as yet, unprepared to indicate the source from which the curative matter is derived. Neither is he ready to explain the method of preparation. The reason he gives is that the experimental work has not yet been brought to completion. He states, however, that the curative lymph itself can now be obtained from Dr. Libbertz, whose address is No. 28 Luebenburger strasse, Berlin. The lymph is described as consisting of a brownish transparent liquid. It is so prepared as to be proof against deterioration. When, however, it is diluted with water necessary for use, the matter is likely to decay. It is necessary, therefore, that the attenuations should be perfectly sterilized by heat and preserved in wadding covering, or prepared with a solution of phenol 50 percentage strong.

When taken into the stomach, the curative matter proves to have no effect. It must be applied sub-cutaneously by means of a valveless syringe. The kind of syringe recommended by Professor Koch, is one furnished with a small, hollow rubber ball. This syringe approved itself to him during his bacteriological experiments. Its merit is that it can be easily and surely rinsed with absolute alcohol and kept in a perfectly aseptic condition. In thousands of cases, he says, where it has been used for sub-cutaneous injections, not a single abscess resulted.

The lymph is usually injected near the loins. Human beings are more susceptible to its influence than guinea pigs. Two cubic centimetres of the substance affected a guinea pig but slightly, while twenty-five one-thousandths of a cubic centimetre produced a marked effect upon a healthy man. The lowest limit of effective strength is one one-hundredth of a cubic centimetre. This quantity in a healthy body produces but slight reaction or none at all. This is also true of its application to persons suffering from other than tuberculous affections. But with tuberculous subjects it produces a general and a local action: the general reaction consisting of a febrile attack, the temperature rising to 39 or 41 centigrade, with coughing, irritation, exhaustion, sometimes nausea and vomiting, and there is sometimes an eruption resembling that of measles on the chest and neck.

The attack begins four or five hours after the injection, and lasts twelve or fifteen hours. Afterward the patient feels better than before the injection. The local reaction is best observed in cases of lupus. Within a few hours after the injection the lupus sores swell and redden. The effect increases during the period of fever until the lupus tissue assumes a dark brown tint and a necrotic condition. After the fever departs, the swelling decreases, and possibly vanishes. In two or three days the lupus centres become covered with scales, which fall off in two or three weeks. The local reaction in the lungs it is impossible to observe apart from increased expectoration and cough. The symptoms described always follow in tuberculous patients when a hundredth part of a cubic centimetre is injected. This treatment, therefore, will afford an indispensable auxiliary to diagnosis. Professor Koch believes that the remedy will cure incipient consumption.

Whether the cure will be final is as yet not fully proved. The remedy does not kill bacilli, but tubercular tissue. It does not affect dead tissue, but only living. Therefore, the tuberculous tissue killed by the remedy must be removed. Every effort must be made to accomplish this by surgery. When this is impossible, and secretion can only proceed by the self-help of the organism, the threatened living tissue must at the same time be protected by continual applications of the remedy to guard against re-entrance of the parasites. The fact that the remedy kills only tuberculous tissue explains the possibility of applying rapidly increased doses.

At the outset, when there is much living tuberculous tissue, a small portion of the remedy suffices to produce a strong reaction. Each injection kills a certain quantity of tissue. It naturally results that increased doses are necessary to obtain the same degree of reaction. When patients treated with increased doses experience no greater reaction than unaffected persons, it can be assumed that all the tissue open to reaction is dead. In cases of lupus a hundredth of a centimetre should be injected, and after the reaction has taken its full course, a second injection should be made, and so on.

Consumptives are more susceptible, and the first dose should be only a thousandth of a cubic centimetre, the doses being increased by one thousandth until they gradually reach a hundredth and upwards; though consumptives still comparatively strong may reach the increased doses more quickly and with correspondingly more favorable results. Patients treated in the early stage of consumption are entirely freed from morbid symptoms sometimes within four or six weeks. Consumptives with large cavities in their lungs will probably experience the benefit of the new remedy only in exceptional instances, though most are temporarily improved.

Professor Koch holds that the treatment should be applied only in suitable institutions. He emphasizes the importance of early treatment, as it is only in the incipient stages that the remedy is fully efficient.

There is a remarkable exodus of consumptives from the resorts on the shores of the Mediterranean to Berlin, and the hotels are filling fast with such persons. A large number of American physicians have also given notice of their intention to be present on the occasion of Dr. Koch's lecture on Nov. 26.

THE LOSS OF THE SERPENT.

Before She Sailed Many Men Deserted. Now Awaiting Trial.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—The excitement caused by the loss of the cruiser Serpent and her officers and crew has been increased by the discovery that quite a large number of men deserted the ship just before she sailed, and are now imprisoned awaiting trial. This convincing evidence that the sailors believed the vessel unfit to stand a sea voyage has aroused a storm of indignation against the naval authorities for permitting the trip to be made without having an official survey made to determine the seaworthiness of the cruiser.

The commotion at Devonport continues day and night, no rest or sleep being possible for the families and friends of the missing men, who seem to cling desperately to the hope that by some miracle the first accounts of the almost total annihilation of the crew may turn out to have been exaggerated.

The newsboys are pounced upon by crowds of dockers, who fairly tear the special editions of the papers from them in their eagerness to learn the latest particulars.

The statement of Admiral Dowell, that he considered the Serpent a safe vessel, is received with astonishment in the face of his recent official utterances in which he condemned the whole class of vessels to which the Serpent belonged as faulty in type. Everything about this most unfortunate business seems destined to bring discredit and shame upon the admiralty.

The three seamen who survived the wreck of the torpedo cruiser Serpent on the Spanish coast are unable to say more than the vessel was, at the time of the catastrophe, going ahead at full speed.

Frederick Gould, one of the three seamen rescued from the foundered torpedo cruiser Serpent, and who is now in the hospital at Camarinas, is also a survivor of the lost gunboats Wasp and Lily.

RAILWAY DISASTERS

A Collision on the Pennsylvania Road

AT FLORENCE, PENNSYLVANIA.

Three People Killed and Eleven Others Injured. Four of Whom Will Probably Die—The Accident Was Caused by a Dense Fog Preventing the Engineer Seeing the Signals—Other Wrecks.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 15.—A collision occurred on the Pennsylvania railroad near Florence, Pa., shortly before 7 o'clock yesterday morning, between the first and second sections of the western express, killing two passengers and injuring eleven others.

The names of the killed are: Henry D. Minott, of 39 Court street, Boston.

Mrs. S. H. Angell, of No. 809 Twenty-first street, Washington, D. C.

Injured are: R. S. Delaney and wife, of Haymarket, Va., very severely; J. F. Matthews, of Baltimore, seriously; J. Hellman, of Washington, internally; William Rochester, of Hoffman house, New York, internally.

C. C. Hieas, of Providence, R. I., seriously.

Mrs. M. V. Kellogg, of Richmond, slightly.

J. B. Hill, of Sunbury, Pa., internally injured. Serious.

William Miller, of Allegheny City, Pa., very serious.

Henry McCormick, engineer, Nueveveh, very serious.

Dr. Wiehle, slightly hurt.

Mrs. Wiehle, very serious.

The accident was caused by the heavy fog, which prevented the engineer from seeing the first section in time to stop his train. The first section of the western express is made up of Pullman sleepers and day coaches. It left New York in the evening, and was due in Pittsburg at 7:45 o'clock in the morning. It is known as train No. 9.

At Harrisburg the Washington sleeper was attached. The second section is known as train No. 7, and is composed of baggage, express and mail cars. It runs immediately behind No. 9. The first section was due at New Florence at 5:46 a. m., but it was 6:37 when the train reached that station. The fog was so dense that the engineer did not notice the red signal in the tower till after he had passed. He then slowed up and went back for his orders. He then pulled ahead slowly.

In the meantime the flagmen of No. 9 had gone back to signal No. 7. He has not been heard from since, and it is supposed he was not able to get back far enough to stop the second section, as the engine of No. 7 came crashing into the Washington sleeper Biscay, telescoping it to the distance of from ten to twelve feet. The sleeper caught fire and was nearly destroyed. The Achilles, the next sleeper, was thrown from the track, but not badly damaged.

The scene following the collision was exciting in the extreme. The passengers became panic-stricken and in their efforts to get out broke the windows and crawled through. As quickly as possible the passengers in the unfortunate Biscay were removed. It was found that two had been killed outright and eleven others more or less seriously injured. At least four of the injured, it is thought, will die. They were conveyed to houses in the vicinity, and everything possible done to relieve their suffering. The injured passengers arrived in this city shortly before noon.

The horror and fright of the passengers in the "Biscay" as the engine plunged into them, was added to by the fog, which was close in on them and made it next to impossible to see what had happened. The car caught fire speedily but the passengers were removed before their condition was made horrible by burns.

The hiss of the escaping steam from the wreckage of the car, the crackling of the flames, the rattling of the rank smoke with the fog, said the porter of the Biscay, "made the most awful combination you could imagine. There were the injured passengers screaming and groaning, and those who were not hurt were running around half dressed almost wild with fright. I don't want to talk any more about it just now."

Singularly enough, there was but one injured person on train No. 7, Fireman Pitcairn, who has a serious cut on his head, and his face and lips were split open.

Engineer Henry McCormick was shaken up considerably, but not hurt otherwise.

Dr. Hamilton, of this city, and his assistant, Dr. Herron, were hurried out to New Florence on a special train with Assistant Superintendent Trump. In the meantime several physicians from Johnstown had been sent on a wreck train to assist the doctors from New Florence and adjacent stations who had already taken charge of the injured.

Wreck on the Baltimore and Ohio.

BELLAIRE, O., Nov. 15.—At 4 o'clock yesterday morning a wreck occurred on the Baltimore and Ohio road at Scott's cut, three miles west of Bellaire, between the second section of train No. 1 going west and a helper, No. 15, coming east. John Watson, engineer, and James Fleisher, fireman, were killed instantly. They live at Newark, O. Thomas Burk was injured about the head and cannot recover. James Barrett, fireman, was terribly scalded and died one hour later. Burk and Barrett were brought to their homes in this place. The engines and cars are a complete wreck. Disregarding orders caused the fatal disaster.

A Neglectful Telegraph Operator.

PETERSBURG, Va., Nov. 15.—Two freight trains on the Norfolk and Western railroad collided about 6 o'clock yesterday morning near the Church road, about thirteen miles from this city. Both engines were wrecked as were also sixteen cars. George Breckham, a colored brakeman, was instantly killed. Another brakeman had a leg fractured, and all the other train hands were more or less seriously injured. Negligence on the part of a telegraph operator is said to have caused the disaster.

Two Gravel Trains Collide.

BUFFALO, Nov. 15.—A collision occurred between two gravel trains Saturday evening, on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, at East Buffalo. John Swimbosky, a laborer, was instantly killed. John Walsavey, Parveau Petkoseck and John Kostreck were fatally injured, and six others, names unknown, are badly injured. The wreck was caused by a misunderstanding of signals.

CONVENTION OF WOMEN.

Meeting of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

ATLANTA, Nov. 14.—The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the United States assembled in Trinity church of this city yesterday, with an attendance from every state in the Union and the Canadas. Miss Frances E. Willard presided. After the hymn, "Rock of Ages," had been sung by the delegates, Mrs. Monroe, of Ohio, led in reading the 146th Psalm, "The Crusade Hymn." Mrs. Zeerelda Wallace, the venerable mother of Gen. Lew Wallace, called the blessing of Almighty God upon the convention in an eloquently worded prayer.

The principal event of the day was the address of Miss Willard. It covers 107 pages and was distributed in the convention. It had over thirty sub-divisions and included Miss Willard's annual report as president of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance union. The address dealt with the year's work, and declared the Woman's Christian Temperance union to be now closing its best year and the one of its largest increase in membership. It asserted that the original package decision resulted in the most helpful temperance agitation of the year. It declared against high license and for prohibition by law, by politics and by woman's ballot.

In Miss Willard's report among other recommendations were the following: The organization of a woman's council in every town in the nation, to be composed of the presidents of the various societies engaged in women's work. By such unification of women's enterprises, it will be practicable to build a woman's temple in every town to serve as the rendezvous for their varied philanthropic work, and by its rentals to help to carry the work forward. Feb. 15 to 18, 1891, inclusive, has been set for the first regular meeting of the Woman's National council to be held in Cincinnati.

The National Woman's Christian Temperance Union is auxiliary to the council and has been invited to send representative women who shall speak in its behalf. She asks the convention to name a day for a general movement all over the land in accordance with the plan for the membership crusade. The plan is to let the local unions divide up in twos and threes and canvass for new members, leaving literature in each home.

Also on the question of a petition from women of the civilized world to the czar, against political prisoners being classed with those guilty of crimes, and against their being treated with so much harshness.

THEY THAWED DYNAMITE.

Terrible Accident in a Quarry at Lima, O. Three Killed.

LIMA, O., Nov. 15.—Three human lives went out of existence in a moment here yesterday morning and four were severely injured by an explosion of twenty-five pounds of dynamite and the same amount of giant powder. The terrible fatality occurred at Custer's stone quarry, in the southwest part of town, about 8 o'clock in the morning.

The explosive was stored in a small shed on the ledge above the quarry, and two men were within thawing out dynamite cartridges. A third was approaching the shed when the explosion occurred, and the three were blown a hundred feet in the air, falling headless and limbless 150 feet from the scene. The air and trees were filled with flying debris, and only a big hole marks where the shanty stood.

Several of the men and some horses working in the pit were struck by the falling debris and badly injured.

The killed are: George Fisher, married, leaves a widow and four children, living six miles east of town.

Henry Weiskopf, married, leaves a widow and two children, living at the same place.

Charles Burkett, single. His home is in Honduras, Ind.

The injured are: George Fisher, nephew of the Fisher killed, struck on the head.

Sam. Watts, badly cut.

William Hock, shoulder dislocated.

Abraham Cliver, hurt about head and right arm.

The remains of the dead were gathered in an ambulance and taken to an undertaking establishment. The concussion was plainly felt all over the city and caused great excitement. The terrible scene was viewed by thousands of people. Weiskopf's head was found in a field later, being rolled about by some hogs.

Negro Murderer Surrenders.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 15.—The negro who murdered the wealthy Kentucky farmer, Dr. B. Gorham, on Tuesday, came to Lexington Wednesday and surrendered to the authorities. He claims that his victim was advancing on him with a stick, when he drew his pistol and killed him. There are some apprehensions of a lynching party from the country.

AND Quay is to do some talking at last. Well, he has had time to recover from the terrible thumping given him by the Pennsylvanian a few days since. All his talking, however, will not do him much good now.

The official vote in the Second Congressional district, as returned to the Secretary of State, is as follows: Ellis, 13,983; Bourland, 10,592; Ellis' majority, 3,391. In the Tenth district the vote is as follows: Kendall, 10,749; Hill, 9,145; Kendall's majority, 1,604.

The Census and the Registration.
The recent census gives Maysville a population of 5,350. At the registration this week, the names of 1,152 voters were enrolled. Counting five people for every voter and it gives the city a population of 5,760—410 more people than we have according to the census.

Now everybody knows that all the voters didn't register. A correct census of Maysville would show that she has a population of very near 7,000.

Secret Ballot.

The Elections Committee in the Constitutional convention will recommend nearly unanimously that "in all elections by the people the voting shall be by official secret ballot, furnished by the proper authorities, the same to be marked in private by the voter and deposited by him in the presence of the election officers." Also that there shall be but one election for National, State and county officers in one year, and that it shall be held on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November, the same to be a legal holiday. Further, that no election of city and county officers shall be held on a day when Congressmen are to be elected, but that elections for State officers may be held in connection with elections for either Congressman or city and county officers. The only dissenting member of the committee is Dr. Holloway, of Jessamine, who will make a minority report against the secret ballot system.

Let's Have Tobacco Sales.

The tobacco growers of Mason, Lewis, Fleming, Nicholas, Robertson, Bracken, Brown and Adams counties should not fail to take advantage of the opportunity now presented to establish a warehouse here in Maysville for the sale of the weed.

This is a central point in the territory referred to above, the counties being the principal ones in what is known as the Mason Belt of the white burley district.

The river, the railroads and net work of turnpikes furnish splendid facilities for transportation, and the growers would find it much easier and far cheaper to reach a market here than at Lexington, Louisville, or Cincinnati.

Establish a warehouse in Maysville for the sale of tobacco, and it would save the farmers of the counties named thousands of dollars annually.

And it can be done and should be done.

The large new and elegant six-story warehouse of Mr. N. Cooper on Front street was especially erected for just such purposes. We doubt very much whether either Cincinnati or Louisville can show more costly or more elegant building of the kind. It furnishes ample room to begin with, and we have been told that Mr. Cooper will not only lease it for the purpose named, but will also take stock in an association to conduct the business.

The people of Maysville and Mason County are especially interested in this matter, and they should be prompt in acting.

FOR SALE.—Farm of 105 acres of land in Fleming County for $1,000, on easy payments. Good house, orchard, barns &c. n143t M. C. HUTCINS, Agent.

Henry E. Pogue.

Born in Greensburg, Ky., March 16, 1825; died in Maysville, November 14, 1890.

On the 22nd of May, 1740, fourteen heads of families appeared at the Court of Orange County, Virginia, to "prove their importation;" that is, to swear they had paid their own passage to the colony, in order to obtain lands on the terms proffered by the British King. They were all from Ireland, and were of Scotch descent, and resbyterians. The first on the list, as it stands recorded, was Alexander Breckinridge; the third was John Trimble; the seventh was David Logan, and the eighth was Robert Pogue. One of the sons of Alexander Breckinridge—Colonel Robert—married Mary, one of the daughters of Robert Pogue; and these two were the parents of Captain Alexander and General Robert Breckinridge, of Louisville, Ky., whose younger half-brother was the distinguished John Breckinridge—Mr. Jefferson's able Attorney General. The oldest son of the Robert Pogue, already mentioned, and his wife, was named John; and Elizabeth, one of the daughters of this John, was the wife of Rev. Dr. Moses Hoge, long President of Hampden-Sidney College, and the noble mother of the brilliant Rev. John Blair Hoge, of the Rev. Moses D. Hoge, and of other talented divines. The descendants of Robert and Elizabeth Pogue intermarried with the Bellis, Allens, Wilsons, McClanahans, and other families of Augusta and Rockbridge counties, and no family in the valley of Virginia was of greater intellectual prominence nor more respected for their integrity and superior moral qualities—a position they maintained for nearly one hundred and fifty years. A younger son of Robert Pogue, William, was born in Ireland, came with his parents to Augusta county, removed to Albemarle, served as a soldier from that county in the French and Indian war, was one of the hardy and early pioneers of Kentucky, and was killed by the Indians near Harrodsburg. His widow, whose maiden name was Jane Kennedy, married General Joseph Lindsey, who was killed in the massacre at Blue Licks. One of the sons of William Pogue—Robert—commanded a regiment in the war of 1812, and was the late gallant General Robert Pogue, of Mason County. His son, Lindsey Pogue, married a Miss McCormick, also of a Scotch-Irish Presbyterian family of the Virginia valley. They removed to Greenup County, where they lived and died, and where our friend and fellow citizen, whose death on Friday morning, under the most terrible and tragic circumstances, sent a thrill of horror throughout the whole community, and filled every heart with sorrow, was born and was reared.

The youth of Henry E. Pogue was surrounded with all the advantages of family position and of pecuniary prosperity, his father being a large land owner and a lawyer in good practice. His early educational opportunities were good; he had a taste for reading, while for mathematics and mechanics he possessed decided talent. He had the natural ability to have enabled him to have won success in one of the professions, or to have gained real prominence as an engineer. But, like many of his mentally capable contemporaries where easy circumstances lifted them above the necessity of personal effort, he abhorred labor and drudgery, and his youth and early manhood were passed in the pursuit of pleasure. In the social circle, at the dance, and at public gatherings his was a familiar figure. It was during this period of lavish self-indulgence the writer first saw him, while he was escorting Hon. Archie Dixon through the mountains in 1851. Then his hair was as glossy and black as the raven's wing; his black eyes sparkled with intelligence and exuberant animal spirits; his swarthy complexion had the clearness which belongs to vigorous health; his well-formed person presented the indications of endurance and strength; and his conversation was unusually vivacious. In 1853 he married Miss Frances, the daughter of the late Dr. Wm. R. Wood, of this city. As the years rolled on, and after the cares of a family had been added to his anxieties, when nearly forty years of age, he found himself utterly impoverished, without a profession, or systematic business training, or habits of industry; and yet was made to realize that his individual exertions were the sole dependence of the woman who had trusted him and the children whom he loved. This entire community have witnessed the uncompromising fortitude, the buoyant courage, the hardy self-reliance with which he met and conquered every adverse circumstance. They have seen the untiring industry, the dauntless energy, the indomitable perseverance, and the sturdy manliness with which he labored for a quarter of a century, until he had regained more than he had lost or wasted;—how he had become as careful and frugal as he had been negligent and prodigal; but that it was a frugality that had an honorable purpose and that was not marked by meanness;—until at length he had won for his dear ones a comfortable home, in which he was about to erect his domestic altar and his household gods, when, in the twinkling of an eye, death struck him, the immortal soul had fled, and what had been a stalwart, hopeful and successful man, had become a quivering mass of crushed bones and mangled, bleeding flesh. A man of uncommon power of will and force of character, he was one also of intelligence and of far more than the average mental capacity. Tenacious of his own opinions, of a sanguine temperament, and eminently combative, he had limitless "go," the clearest grit, and great resolution. The writer of this knows that he was manly, brave, fearless. With those qualities he united that rare generosity which, when he had once professed reconciliation, absolutely banished from his heart and mind every trace of hostility and resentment. The community will miss the enterprising and thrifty man of business. But no pen can describe the mind which has not itself endured and suffered will fail to realize, the void which has been created in that cheerful, happy home, in which he was the most tender and loving as he was the most adored of husbands, the proudest and best satisfied and the most respected of fathers.

The Railways

The Superior Court has reversed the case of Gregson versus the C. & O., from Bracken.

Railroad building in Kentucky promises to be more than usually brisk next year. Contractors are said to be figuring on several hundred miles of new road.

Eastbound shipments last week from Chicago were 66,634 tons, against 65,557 tons for the corresponding week last year. The lake lines, in addition, carried 54,781 tons.

The earnings of the Chesapeake and Ohio for the first week of November show an increase of $12,763.61 over those for the corresponding week of last year. The figures are:

1890.....	$154,183.57
1889.....	141,419.96
Increase.....	$12,763.61

A passenger man, who keeps well posted as to the earnings of the important roads of the country, states that the Chesapeake and Ohio and the Northern Pacific show the largest increase in earnings on coupon business. The increase thus far on the C. & O. this year is 93 per cent. over 1889, and that of the Northern Pacific 64 per cent.

To Farmers and Investors.

Having lived the greater part of my life in Mason County, and being now located in North Alabama, I have observed the cheapness of good farm lands in Alabama. I have secured the sales of several good farms, ranging in size from 100 acres to 840 acres in a body. These lands will produce anything that grows in this climate and are well watered and healthy. I will be in Maysville on November 18th and 19th, and will be glad to see anyone who wishes to buy lands in North Alabama or who wishes to learn more of that section of country. Good time given to purchasers. Find me at Zech's saddlery shop, Market street, on the 18th and 19th. 1245wt1 Wm. R. ZECH.

Entitled to the Best.

All are entitled to the best that their money will buy, so every family should have, at once, a bottle of the best family remedy, Syrup of Figs, to cleanse the system when costive or bilious. For sale in 50c. and $1 bottles by leading druggists.

Here and There.

THOMAS P. DOBYNS, an out-and-out Democrat, was elected Treasurer and Assessor (both offices are combined there) in Morgan County, Ill. He carried the city of Jacksonville—a Republican stronghold—by a handsome majority, and his majority in the county was 998. He was born in Bourbon County and is a brother of Major Sam. T. Dobyms, of Covington.—Paris Kentuckian.

The Limestone Coöperage Company has nine men employed at present, and the force will be increased soon. The company has invited the business men of Maysville to visit the factory next Wednesday afternoon and see how the work is carried on. Street cars will be on the opera house switch at 3 p. m. next Wednesday to take the crowd up and bring them back. This notice should have appeared Thursday but was crowded out by the rush of other news.

BIRCHALL HANGED.

The Noted Murderer Pays the Death Penalty on the Scaffold.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Nov. 15.—At 8:20 yesterday morning the noted murderer, J. Reginald Birchall, was hanged in the jail yard at this place. The execution was witnessed by 250 people. His neck was not dislocated, and he died in sixteen minutes after the drop fell. He made no confession, but claimed to be innocent of the crime for which he was accused.

J. REGINALD BIRCHALL. MRS. BIRCHALL. FREDERICK C. BENWELL.

Birchall's crime was the killing of F. C. Benwell, Feb. 17 last, in a swamp in Oxford county, Canada. Birchall came to Canada early in the summer of 1882 to become a farmer, but finding the work harder than he had been led to expect, he staid in Woodstock. Birchall talked a great deal about aristocrats in England, with whom he claimed to be acquainted or connected. He signed himself Birchall or Burchell, but spoke of himself as the possessor of or by apparent to the title of Lord Somerset. Many people in Oxford county knew him only as Somerset.

There did not seem to be anything vicious about him, he was simply bent on having a good time. His wife seemed to second him in what he did, and was known everywhere as Lady Somerset. These two disappeared in the fall as quickly as they had come, leaving certain unpaid bills. When a man was arrested in February last for the murder of the stranger whose body was found in the swamp near Princeton, the people were made aware for the first time that Lord Somerset, or Birchall, had returned.

Against Birchall there were scraps of evidence which, while not making a complete case, were all consistent one with the other, and together were certainly strong. The principal witness was a young Englishman named Douglas R. Pelly, who had come out on the Britannic with Mr. and Mrs. Birchall and Benwell. Pelly and Benwell had made arrangements in England to take an interest in a horse ranch or farm which Birchall claimed he owned in Canada.

SCENE OF THE CRIME.

According to Pelly, Birchall had represented this farm to be a mile and a half from Niagara Falls, the stables lighted with electricity, and the place generally in first-class shape. Benwell's father, a retired British colonel, was to pay $500 for an interest in this farm as soon as his son should write from Canada that he was satisfied with his bargain. Young Pelly also had paid Birchall a large sum on condition that he was to have employment on the farm with a small share in the profits. Mouday, Feb. 17, Benwell and Birchall had taken the Grand Trunk southern division train to go the alleged stock farm.

That night Birchall returned alone, explaining that Benwell had gone on further, probably intending to call at London, Ont. The two men, however, were seen to get off at Eastwood station and go across the fields in a direction which would take them to the swamp. Birchall was subsequently seen to return alone. Two days later Benwell's body was found in the swamp. Birchall was tried, promptly convicted, and, on Sept. 29, sentenced to death.

Birchall's body was buried in the jail yard soon after the verdict was reached. This ends the story of Birchall's crime and expiation. There are $500 held back out of the $1,500 agreed to be paid by The Toronto Mail for the history of his life. He was to furnish matter or information to no other newspaper. The autograph letter in The Sentinel Review, The Mail people claim, is a violation of the contract, and they refuse to pay the balance. Birchall's friends say the letter was delivered to George Perry and not The Sentinel Review, and therefore is not a violation.

It is learned that Mrs. Birchall will remain in Woodstock for some little time yet before starting for England. She has been kept under the influence of opiates ever since yesterday morning. She has slept nearly continuously, and seems to fail to realize her widowhood.

Suicided With Prussic Acid.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 15.—Louis J. Camacho, a wealthy Cuban, who came to this city twenty-five years ago, committed suicide in Druid Hill park yesterday afternoon. Suspecting his intention an officer had watched Camacho and saw him fall to the ground. Before the patrol wagon reached the hospital the man was dead. He had taken prussic acid. Camacho has been despondent for a long time, and a few months ago cut his throat and turned on the gas in a room at the Academy hotel. He was a successful business man, and leaves $75,000 to his heirs.

MARY EUBANKS' MURDER.

Her Aged Father Tells How His Son Beat His Sister to Death.

MITCHELL, Ind., Nov. 15.—Mortimer Eubanks, the aged father of Miss Mary Eubanks, who was arrested as an accomplice with his son "Bee" Eubanks as the murderer of his sister, has made a confession to Westley Walker, the town marshal.

He says the murder occurred about midnight Sunday night. "Bee" Eubanks was abusing his sister while he (the father) tried to prevent him, but he could not, as he was old and feeble. "Bee" then took up a club and beat his sister in spite of his entreaties. He ran into the street and called for help, but no one came. He was unable to help his daughter.

Caught in the Shafting.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 15.—Henry E. Pogue, aged 65, a prominent business man of Mayeville, Ky., and a member of the firm of Pogue & Thomas, distillers, was caught in the shafting of the distillery at 11 o'clock Friday morning and instantly killed. He leaves two sons, one a Presbyterian minister at Atlanta, Ga., the other a lawyer of Cincinnati.

Burglars Captured.

PERU, Ind., Nov. 15.—Burglars affected an entrance in the clothing and furnishing department of Shirk & Miller's store at 11 o'clock Thursday morning, and carried away numerous articles of clothing, jewelry, etc., amounting to about $1,300. One man and some of the goods have since been found. The man says three other professionals were with him, and that they are making a tour for all they can get. Several private houses suffered losses of large sums of money.

That Wreck on the Union Pacific.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Nov. 15.—The engine of a freight train on the Union Pacific railroad broke down at Green river yesterday, delaying passenger travel about nine hours. Reports of any other wreck on the Union Pacific are unfounded.
